THE VOICE OF AMMAR NAGAR

PHYSIOTHERAPIST

BY DR.KHADIJA RATLAMWALA

I have always believed that movement is one of the most powerful tools for restoring health, improving quality of life, and promoting independence. This belief inspired me to pursue a Bachelor's degree in Physiotherapy and further in future the Master's degree in orthopedics/sports, where I have gained knowledge and practical skills to help individuals recover from injuries, manage pain, and regain their physical abilities. I chose this profession because I want to make a meaningful difference in people's lives by helping them achieve better health through evidence-based physiotherapy and rehabilitation.

Physiotherapy is much more than treating pain or injuries. It is about understanding each individual's unique condition, encouraging them throughout their recovery journey, and empowering them to lead healthier, more active lives. I also aspire to create awareness in my community about the importance of physical activity, posture, injury prevention, and early rehabilitation, so that people can enjoy a better quality of life.

✍️There are several values that I strive to uphold throughout my professional career.

The first is faith. I believe that I am only a means through which patients receive care and support.

True healing is in the hands of Allah, and I consider it a privilege that He has given me the opportunity to use my knowledge and skills to serve others with sincerity and compassion.
The second is willingness. Physiotherapy is a constantly evolving field, with new research, treatment techniques, and rehabilitation approaches being introduced regularly. I believe it is my responsibility to stay updated with the latest evidence-based practices so that I can provide safe, effective, and high-quality care to every patient.

The third is perseverance. Every patient responds differently to treatment because every individual has unique physical, emotional, and social needs. A rehabilitation program that works for one patient may not be suitable for another. If one treatment approach does not achieve the desired outcome, I will continue exploring alternative evidence-based methods rather than giving up. My goal is to understand each patient's condition, encourage them throughout their recovery, and work together until the best possible outcome is achieved.
Lastly, I believe that trust and confidentiality are the foundations of quality patient care. Patients often share personal health information and place their confidence in their physiotherapist. I will always respect their privacy, maintain confidentiality, and build a professional relationship based on honesty, empathy, and mutual respect.
For me, physiotherapy is not just a profession—it is a lifelong commitment to helping people restore movement, relieve pain, and improve their overall well-being. I hope to continue learning, serving with dedication, and making a meaningful contribution to the health and quality of life of individuals and the community. Through compassion, integrity, and evidence-based practice, I aspire to become a physiotherapist who not only treats physical conditions but also inspires hope, confidence, and independence in every patient I serve.

DIETICIAN

BY ZAINAB DHARWALA

I have always believed that food is one of the most powerful tools for improving health. This belief encouraged me to pursue my Bachelor's and Master's degrees in Food and Nutrition, along with a Diabetes Education Program. I chose this field because I want to help people manage and prevent diseases through the right nutrition and healthy lifestyle habits. I also wish to create awareness in my community about the importance of a balanced diet and how small improvements in our traditional thali can make a big difference to our health.

There are a few values that I always want to follow in my profession.
→ The first is faith. I believe that I am only a medium through which people receive care. Healing is in the hands of Allah, and I consider it a blessing that I can use my knowledge to help others.
→ The second is the willingness to keep learning. New research and better treatment methods are introduced every year. As a nutrition professional, I believe it is important to keep updating my knowledgeso that I can provide the best possible guidance to the people who come to me.

→ The third is not giving up on a patient. Every individual is different, so the same diet cannot work for everyone. If one plan does not give the desired results, I will try another approach instead of giving up. My responsibility is to understand each person's needs and continue supporting them until we find a plan that suits them.
→ Lastly, I believe that trust is the foundation of patient care. If someone shares their personal or medical concerns with me, I will respect their privacy and keep that information confidential.

For me, nutrition is not just a career. It is an opportunity to serve people with honesty, compassion, and dedication. I hope to continue learning, helping, and making a meaningful contribution to the health and well-being of my community.

NUTRITION

BY SARRAH PRESSWALA

Food is one of Allah's greatest blessings, and good health begins with the choices we make every day. I chose to become a Nutritionist because I believe that proper nutrition has the power to prevent illness, improve well-being, and help people live healthier, happier lives. To me, this profession is not merely about creating meal plans or earning a livelihood—it is an Amanat from Allah and a beautiful opportunity for Khidmat.

A nutritionist's responsibility goes beyond advising people on what to eat. Every individual who seeks guidance places their trust in us, sharing their health concerns, struggles, and personal information. Moula's Waaz reminded me that every person who comes to us should be seen as an opportunity to serve with Ihsan, Ikhlas, and deep compassion. Just as a doctor must explain a diagnosis with care, a nutritionist must patiently explain healthy choices in a way that every person can understand and follow in their daily life.

One teaching from Moula's Waaz that deeply touched me was to pause before meeting each person and ask myself, "How can I serve this individual with greater precision, compassion, and sincerity?"

If I begin every consultation with this intention, my advice becomes more than professional guidance—it becomes sincere Khidmat. I must also safeguard every client's personal information as an Amanat, treating it with complete confidentiality and respect.

Moula also reminded us that we are only instruments through whom Allah's mercy reaches His creation. A nutritionist may guide, educate, and encourage, but true health and Shifa ultimately come from Allah. This understanding fills my heart with Tawazu, keeps me humble, and reminds me never to take credit for the blessings Allah grants.

My profession is therefore not simply about food; it is about nurturing lives with Rahmat, honesty, and excellence. If I practice Adl, Amanat, Ikhlas, and Ihsan every day, then every consultation becomes an opportunity to serve Allah by caring for His creation with sincerity and compassion.
